Society of Professional Locksmiths Acquire New Headquarters & Training Facility

SPRING VALLEY, NY – 4/1/21 – Society of Professional Locksmiths (SOPL), has acquired a 10,000 sq/ft facility for its headquarters and training center. SOPL will offer hands on occupational training and installation certification. While others are shuttering their doors and selling the buildings, the SOPL is expanding. As the leader and innovator of the first complete online training and proficiency testing for the locksmith, the SOPL continues to address the needs of the industry.

“Membership has its privileges; our members now have even more access to valuable hands on training, experienced instructors and security professionals from around the globe. We value each member and support their professional development and continued educational needs. We do this with responsible oversight and leadership. Where others continue to fail, our organization continues to succeed” SOPL founder Tom Lynch said. “

The Society of Professional Locksmiths is a collaboration of security professionals whose members strive to implement forward-thinking initiatives through education, networking and benevolent support.

Members benefit from rapid communication and response to their needs and desires from peer support and project development.
